Overview

This resource has been developed for Māori language teachers. We have carefully selected 80 describing words – 40 relating to feelings and 40 high-frequency adjectives. This deck of cards has been developed to support students in learning new vocabulary, and as a broader resource to help them on their Māori language learning journey.

Hei Whakamahinga | Suggestions for Use

1. Pronunciation

Each student selects a card and reads aloud ensuring correct pronunciation of long and short vowel sounds. If extra support is needed, encourage students to break the word into syllables, then attempt to read the whole word again.

2. Sentence Building

Each student selects a card, reads the word aloud and creates a sentence using the word. For extra support, use an Alpha Ladder and ask students to write their words and sentences on the chart.

3. Categorisation

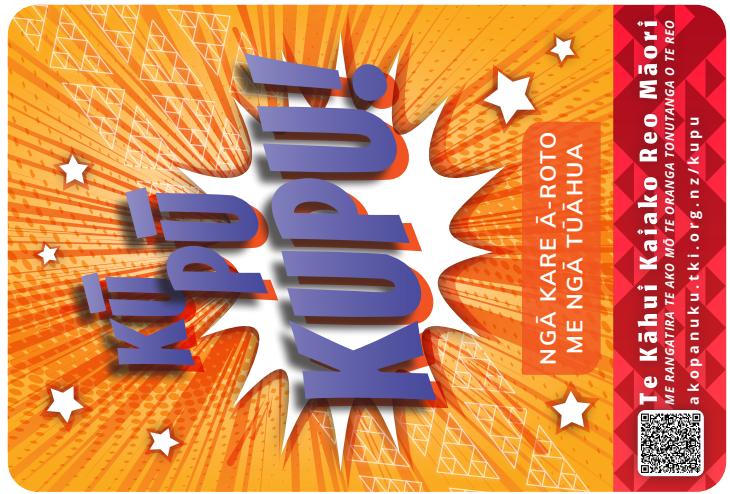

Students work together to group the word cards into categories. These could be different contexts, or opposites. Students justify their categorisation by using each word in a sentence.

4. Associated Words

Students work in small groups. Each student picks a card (randomly), and the group works together to think of any related words e.g., manahau, harikoā, ora.

5. Dictionary Skills

Students use dictionaries to research words selected from the deck. Encourage students to present their findings by including the definition and use in 1-2 sentences. For further extension, students can use dictionaries and thesauruses to find synonyms and antonyms for Māori and English words.

6. Introducing New Vocabulary

Drilling – provide a listening model for any new words you are planning to teach before showing them in any written form e.g., provided by the teacher, audio recording, or from another student. Encourage students to repeat what is heard – either in groups, pairs or individually.

7. Revising, Consolidating and Recycling Vocabulary

Build a story – Give students 3–5 word cards. Students must use the words to create a story. To support beginners, allow them to create the story in English, including the Māori word. Ensure the word is used in the correct context.

Layout all cards on a table. Students take turns picking up as many cards as they can and using as many of the words in a single sentence. They retain the cards they have used and return the unused cards to the pack. The student with the most cards at the end wins. In turns, students take a card and use it in a sentence. The next student takes a card and adds it on to the previous sentence to create a story.
